June 21 Monday Second Solstice Photo Op

Michael Creedman invites members to participate in a personal history experiment , using photographs and brief text to record the way the world’s condition is perceived by a variety of individuals. Each participant makes one of more pictures on the summer solstice and half a year later on the winter solstice.

The subject of the photo should represent an issue that is of concern to the participant. It could be the clouded future of your grandchildren, the promise of renewable energy resources, your good or bad health, the beauty or squalor that surrounds us, whether you see the glass as half empty or full, or whatever is on your mind on the day of the solstice. To become part of the experiment, get more information, or offer suggestions, call Michael at 415/ 643-1942d
